

Main Street

Angus & Julia Stone

My heart is aching for yours
I never let you be sure
My bones are aching for yours
You rode me on your bicycle down Main Street

You were all that remained
Everything else slowly fades away
You were the one who forgave
You rode me on your bicycle down Main Street

Whatever happened to those lights
Whatever happened to those lights
Whatever happened to those lights we found
Whatever happened to those lights

You painted us kissing in blue
I wrote another song for you
Held me as though I'd never leave
You rode me on your bicycle down Main Street

Whatever happened to those lights
Whatever happened to those lights
Whatever happened to those lights we found
Whatever happened to those lights

Go stand waiting
Go stand waiting
Go stand waiting at the door
Go stand waiting
Go stand waiting
Go stand waiting at the door

Whatever happened to those lights
Whatever happened to those lights
Whatever happened to those lights we found
Whatever happened to those lights
