

Anything

Black Lab

It could have been anyone
Could have been a woman or a man
Must have swept her away
Made her forget who I am
It could have been anyone
Could have slipped me a drug
Must have been a permanent dose
To make me forget who she was

It could have been anything
Could have been the time we spent alone
Maybe too much time together
Maybe too close to the bone
It could have been anything
Any word I might have said
Just a look I might have given
Just the angle of my head (I forget)

But we come we go
We say that we know
But we don't remember and
We don't remind each other
We come we go
We say that we know
But we don't remember no we Don't recognize each other

It could have been anyone
Any rumor passed around
Someone made her doubt me
Made her head for higher ground
It could have been anything
Any gesture or word
Maybe something I misstated
Something she misunderstood (I would)

We come we go
But we don't remember and we
Don't recognize that
Maybe this time things might work out right
Maybe this time she might catch my eye
Maybe something
Anything
Could strike me blind and
I might remember her and
She might remember me this time

It could have been anything
Anything
The ring around her finger
It could have been anything
Any piece
Shattered on the way
Anyone
She'll take another lover
It could have been anything anything anything anything

We come we go
We don't recognize each other.
