

Childhood Drama

Goapele

I never wanted to be, like every other child abandoned in childhood drama (oh)

I always felt that I was the exception to the rule but now who's the fool

You won't give me your love your love

So when you left me I filled up that empty place and never told it's still hollow (it's still hollow)

Can't you see potential you have and what you dreamed if it's not based in reality

And your denial is a tragedy

And your excuses backed up by love can hinder more than a brave risk you take even if it cracks on this floor

You won't give me your love

You weren't living your love

You won't give me your love

Your love

So when you left me I filled up that empty place and never told it's still hollow (it's still hollow)

Why is it you believe that to quit is better than really trying to succeed

I wish you'd stayed to guide me

It seems that I, I don't fit in anywhere that I can see

I can't follow your lead, oh

You won't give me your love

You weren't living your love

You won't give me your love

You weren't living your love

You won't give me your love

Your love

So when you left me I filled up that empty place and never told it's still hollow

So I walk to the shore to cry my tears in the ocean

I can see that looking in my eyes ain't enough to bring you back no more

Back no more

You won't give me your love

You weren't living your love [repeat till fade]
