Nosound

I saw you outside in your own reflection looking for friends without caution they asked you to try again you had to stop, but facts remained you can say I was loosing my fight you can say I was wrong and you were right you were lying and keeping away all the feelings you always complained you can say you were loosing your mind you can say you were feeling behind you were looking for places around falling down until you hitted the ground solding out all the emotions you pictured your life without caption can't stop this because of the flow, the days, the options and feels the way you always deceive you can say I was loosing my fight you can say I was wrong and you were right you were lying and keeping away all the feelings you always complained you can say you were loosing your mind you can say you were feeling behind you were looking for places remained confusing yourself in the rain