

With every day I seem more scared of dying
And half the words I ever said, I'm only lying
You can fall on me
Fall on me

There's too many words I want to say but never will
And too many roles I want to play before I'm old
But it's only common sense
That could hold me back from the things I lack
But I want to yes I need to
Do it all again and again and again

Too many words are left unsaid to the ones we love
And too many hearts will never mend now someone's dead
But it's only common sense
That can hold you back from the things you lack
But you want to yes you need to
Do it all again and again and again