I remember when I was a young man I was lonely, no one seemed to understand. Though I searched I couldn't find companions, No one there for me That reached a helping hand. So it came I'd be a loner, I was wondering through my silent universe, It took me years to find the answers, Find that all I needed was within. I have seen the truth in one perception And the story is unfolded. Send my vision to the stars And they will answer to me now. Into the fire And out of the cold, Stripped to the wire by forces untold. Into the fire, I'm forged in the flames Made from desires of one million dreams. Don't you know the future Has been written long ago. There's no stupid question In a world that's mad, you know. And in every end There lies a new beginning, so All is heaven sent, You only can be winning now. Time to be reborn into the fire Now you'll be reborn, You will be forged, Forged in the fire