Civilisation

Richard Thompson

They're not human, they're with the Woolwich They eat food I wouldn't give to my dog They're hygienic, medicated They wouldn't live next door to no wog They're not human, where do they come from? I don't know what they're living here for They don't belong here, on this planet What are they doing in the house next door?

Wife's tranquilized, milk's pasteurized Kid's hypnotized by the t.v. Dad'll beat you, dog'll eat you They'll treat you like family

All across the nation It's civilisation

They're not human, they've got a new car They're going to polish it all the day long Got a brand new rubber woman They're going to blow her up all the night long They're not human, it's a double cross They sold out for a handful of beads They sold everything for nothing, just a Headful of dreams and a handful of greed

Keep 'em happy, keep 'em drinking
Keep 'em laughing, no thinking
No dying, no weeping
Keep 'em hypnotized, keep 'em sleeping

All across the nation It's civilisation

Pack you off to school, get working Get a steady job, no shirking Get to sixty-five, get a handshake You're a vegetable with a heartache
