This night these memories lost and found Are taking over me
I could see your picture and hear the sound Of the song you sung to me

You gotta feel and take every chance You did the right thing Drove a thousand miles away Out of trace and in another time You did the wrong thing And bought it back in your mind Why's life so unkind?

For always and ever it's getting better I feel your steps with mine I'm moving on like it said in the letter Another place, another time

Blown away, a thousand miles away