

Radio

Stray from the Path

So go on and be what they told you to be,
they didn't have faith in me
and now I'm ending up on the radio.
So go on go on and be what they told you to be
they didn't have faith in me,
and now I'm ending up on the radio.

I saw you laughing when I chose my path just some young punk kid always skipping class, I know that's what you thought what you bought but you got it wrong, look at me now I'm still singing the same songs, family wants to talk like they know what's best, outdated wisdom I'm not at all impressed, I see clear intentions to make me feel less I've only just begun to get this off my chest.

I've made it I've made it,
I'm a rolling stone and you hate it,
admit it admit it you're fading, you've missed your train and I'm the one that you're blaming, so go on and be what they told you to be,
they didn't have faith in me,
and now I'm ending up on the radio.

So go on and be what they told you to be,
they didn't have faith in me
and now I'm ending up on the radio.
So go on go on and be what they told you to be
they didn't have faith in me
and now I'm ending up on the radio.

Now I'm laughing hahaha!
So out of gas on the verge of breaking down, close to crashing on the side of the road you'll never get out of this town.
Coming clean suppose to be behind me out of touch so you judge me blindly, here we are here we stand the new breed of success feeling good because it's finally off my chest.

I've made it I've made it,
I'm a rolling stone and you hate it,
admit it admit it, you're fading
you've missed your train and I'm the one that you're blaming.
So go on and be what they told you to be,
you didn't have faith in me.
And now I'm ending up on the radio.
Get up get up!

You think your life's a hit song, no one is singing along.