Changing Times

Walls of Jericho

Times have tried Now you and I must complete the cycle When equality cant be built in a day Where do we go from there? To divide us is to separate Let's turn and start again Where do we go from here? Every opportunity is there When standards can be met Because the difference is what you and I make of it Break it down - I'll try if you try But equality can't be built in a day So I'll follow with time on my side I'll keep trying while you push through this wall that you let divide You and I
