I Told You Already

With the Punches

Somethings I thought might be better left unsaid I kept them bottled up with a message that read I'd hate to see this change at all

I can't get to sleep I miss the way that your lips taste on hot summer nights I know you're feeling the same way I know you're thinking about me and the plans that we've made it's just the distance and space I can't wait to come home

You laughed it off when everyone you know said "don't wait, he'll just waste your time" You have my back So I'm by your side And I'll never let this go

This December won't feel so cold I promise this time (finally) I'll be closer than a phone call away I just thought that you should know

With all I've got I hope to god that I can find a way to stay afloat with you I've ground my knuckles to the bone and I've swallowed fire to keep you warm

You laughed it off when everyone you know said "don't wait, he'll just waste your time" You have my back So I'm by your side And I'll never let this go

This December won't feel so cold I promise this time (finally) I'll be closer than a phone call away I just thought that you should know

I just thought that you should know