

Awaken

Wolves At The Gate

Who's shut the mouths of beasts and with the sound of His voice it renders peace?
Who's drowned the earth with rain and made a promise to man to never do the same?
Who's crushed the walls of stone by the use of the sound of the trumpets blown?
Who appoints the kings to throne? The one true King!
Who's quenched a violent fire? Raised and destroyed empires?
Oh how you manifest your grace and power my great King You're my great King!

How can I question your power? For where was I when you laid the earth in that time and hour?
How can I question your might? When even angels bow down to you and kneel at your sight?
When men cast their doubt upon your name
You are unchanging, still the immutable God
When nations rage against your throne
You are unchanging, still the immutable God

Awake my soul, give me eyes to see the King exalted;
deserving and worthy
Awake my soul, give me words to speak among the nations
proclaiming your glory

Awake my soul, oh Lord awake my soul
Oh how You've proven that there is no one like You Ever faithful to such faithless men like us
Awake my soul, oh Lord awake my soul
Oh how You've shown me that this isn't a blind faith In a distant God. You went before me and you bore my sin
Who am I to doubt You? Let me hear Your voice
My ears have heard you Let me see Your face
My eyes have seen you For I believe

Great is thy faithfulness O' God my father and King
There is no shadowy presence; to your promise I cling Thou changest not Thy compassion's
As thou hast been thou forever and ever will be

When men cast their doubt upon your name
You are unchanging, still the immutable God
When nations rage against your throne
You are unchanging, still the immutable God

Awake my soul, give me eyes to see the King exalted;
deserving and worthy
Awake my soul, give me words to speak among the nations
proclaiming your glory

Oh how You've shown me that this isn't a blind faith
In a distant God. You went before me and You bore my sin; I believe Awake my soul; I believe
My faithful King; I believe

For I believe
